EUROPEAN AND INTERNATIONAL STUDIES

ECONOMICS OF GLOBALISATION AND EUROPEAN INTEGRATION
ERASMUS MUNDUS MASTER
The Master Economics of Globalisation and European Integration (EGEI) is a two-year (120 ECTS) program fully taught in English and in a truly global learning environment.

A global career in economics and business.

The Master EGEI programme meets an increasing demand for graduates who have the skills to competently analyse issues of globalisation and economic integration, make relevant policy or strategic recommendations in the public and private sectors.

Excellence in training and education.

An innovative approach which brings together advanced academic competences with more practical knowledge and skills.

Lectures and seminars with EU officials, visits to EU institutions and other Brussels-based bodies.

Interactive modes of instruction: Oxford-style debate, simulations, role playing games, discussion groups and "pitch" presentations.

An Erasmus Mundus Joint Master Degree.

Students must spend at least two terms in two EU countries different from their country of residence.

Upon successful completion of the programme, students earn the Erasmus Mundus Joint Master Degree in Economics of Globalisation and European Integration.

The diplomas are awarded jointly by a consortium of seven universities and a leading global think tank. Associate partners from academia, international organisations and private sector contribute to the programme with specific skills and highly valuable experience.

STRUCTURE OF THE PROGRAMME

The master’s programme has a workload of 120 ECTS credits, with a taught part consisting of 90 credits, an internship of 10 credits and a dissertation of 20 credits.

The study programme is full-time and runs over 24 months. It is taught by staff of the eight partner institutions and by high-profile visiting scholars.

During the 2-years students move to at least three different universities in three different countries.

UNIVERSITY OF LILLE

The University of Lille, a multidisciplinary institute of excellence at the heart of northwestern Europe, boasts an exceptional cultural and scientific heritage that is an integral part of the history of the Hauts-de-France region. With 72,000 students (9,502 of whom are from overseas), a staff of 6,700, 66 research units and a range of courses that cover all academic disciplines, it is a key stakeholder in the region for education, research and innovation and through its contributions to societal issues. The University of Lille is also the beneficiary of a far-reaching national plan to finance excellence (I-SITE) allowing it to use special funds to run innovative projects.

FACULTY OF ECONOMICS, SOCIAL SCIENCES, GEOGRAPHY AND PLANNING

The Faculty of economics, social sciences, geography and planning is the fruit of a merger between five components* of the University of Lille. It was created to offer students a diverse range of courses in humanities, the social sciences and law, economics & management.

Beginning in September 2021, it will host more than 6,000 undergraduates and students in continuous education and on work–study contracts, with a multidisciplinary offer of bachelor’s and master’s programmes, comprising more than 60 courses. It will provide academic and vocational teaching at the highest level, combining theory and practice, with more than 300 teachers, lecturers, researchers and guest practitioners. Building on its international reputation, it will also give some 200 students the chance to benefit from an overseas exchange programme.

It is made up of three departments, each with its own renowned research unit: the Economics & management institute, the Department of Social science and the Department of geography & planning.

* Faculty of economics and social science, Department of geography and planning, Department of mathematics, computer science, management and economics (MIME), Department of sociology and social development (DECCID), and Department of cultural studies (DECCID).
